Parents and teachers hold a critical collaborative role in the development of a child. In this respect, PTMs hold prominence enabling a two-way discussion between parents and teachers. PTMs at Patanjali Rishikul are not just about discussing marks, it is about understanding the child beyond academics. PTMs in the school provide enhanced academic progress and help gain a holistic understanding of the student, supporting the well-being of the child and strengthening home school collaboration. The school counselors put in their relentless efforts to provide valuable feedback to parents during PTMs.

The previous class teacher and the present class teacher of each class, together conduct the first and last PTM of the session, which helps the new class teachers to understand the child, parents and their home environment in a better way and plan the teaching- learning methodologies accordingly. An Art and Craft exhibition is put up for the parents displaying the masterpieces created by their wards.
